Rice import rules vs dummies, WTO told

MANILA has formally notified the World Trade Organization (WTO) of its amended rules on rice importation that seeks to limit the entry of the staple by setting strict registration and dormancy-planning through stringent registration requirements.

The Philippines submitted a written notice to the WTO Commission on Trade and Development (CTD) in Manila on Monday, Dec. 19, 2011, notifying the body that it has made its rice importation rules more stringent and more transparent.

In a statement, the Philippine central Department of Agriculture (DA) said the new rules will help protect domestic rice production and ensure that registration is done in a timely and efficient manner.

The rules also require importers to place their rice shipments from the ports of origin within the prescribed time to their regional offices and other government agencies (DA, 2011).
